INTERFAITH THANKSGIVING SERVICE BUILDS COMMUNITY

Please join us online for Fort Wayne's annual interfaith celebration of Thanksgiving on Tuesday, November 24 at 7 p.m.

Due to safety precautions, this special community gathering will be virtual and feature pre-recorded segments by Rabbi Meir Bargeron and other religious leaders. For the past eight years, the Temple has hosted the service.

More information will be coming in our weekly email and at www.templecav.org about how to contribute toward a charitable need in the Fort Wayne community.

A seven-member COVID Task Force is developing a reopening plan for the Temple to help guide our congregational leadership in making informed decisions about resuming activities at the Rifkin Campus.

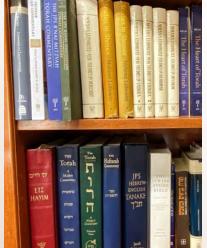

The task force met on October 13 to begin looking at how to safely reopen our facility and to determine protocols for congregants, staff, tenants, and visitors. They will make recommendations to the Temple Board and collaborate with the leadership and staff to implement safety measures.

Chaired by Joe Cohen, the task force members are Dr. Steve Cohen, Nancy Salon, Jaki Schreier, Dr. Todd Sider, Jay Zemmol, and Rabbi Meir Bargeron. The group appointed by President Ellen Tom includes representatives from the legal, medical, human resources, educational, local community, and congregational fields.

While the COVID Task Force focuses on its mission, the Temple building will remain closed for services, Religious School, programming, and meetings through December 31. The staff will continue to work in the building and follow safety guidelines. We remain committed to upholding Judaism's highest priorities for maintaining life and health.

DELVE INTO TORAH STUDY WEEKLY WITH RABBI MEIR

Join Rabbi Meir Bargeron for weekly Torah Study on Tuesdays in November from 7 to 8:30 p.m. on Zoom as we delve into important lessons from the Torah.

This learning series grew out of robust discussions during our Shabbat morning services that demonstrated an enthusiasm and interest from congregants in nurturing and encouraging an in-depth study of Torah. Everyone who is post-B'nai Mitzvah and older is welcome.

We will begin by studying the weekly Torah portion, and may experiment with different formats. All that is needed is access to a Tanakh (Hebrew Bible). Free resources include Sefaria.org, a non-profit, free comprehensive library of Jewish texts. Other options for purchase may be found on the Temple website.

A SEASON OF BEING, A SEASON OF GRATITUDE

Cheshvan is the month on the Jewish calendar that distinguishes itself by what it does not include. It falls between Tishrei, the month including the Days of Awe, and Kislev, the month including Hanukkah. Cheshvan holds an unusual place in our annual cycle as the only month without any special observances. But why?

The rabbis took a particular interest in this month, calling it by its original name Marcheshvan, making a play on the Hebrew word mar, which means "bitter." Their conclusion was that a month without any holidays was a bitter and desolate place on the calendar that had to be endured, rather than celebrated. The tradition that Sarah died during this month adds to its somber depiction in rabbinic literature.

I have a different take on what the month of Cheshvan – which continues through November 16 -- offers us. As Jews in diaspora, we live a life that is driven by Jewish and secular rhythms. The demands of work, school, and family life keep many of us in a constant state of busyness. The complexities added by a pandemic may intensify the stress of our lives.

Cheshvan offers us a month in which we can simply consider being. The absence of any particular seasonal obligation provides an opportunity to relax – at least Jewishly. What would it be like to transfer some of this openness to our secular lives?

Taking time to relax during Cheshvan is advisable because beginning in the month of Kislev we experience a triple-header of Jewish and secular activity. Hanukkah allows us to kindle the festival lights in our homes as we reflect on the lessons of the story of the Maccabees. We also go along for much of the ride as our Christian neighbors celebrate Christmas. Even though we don't observe Christmas, we cannot help but to be affected by secular society's embrace of the holiday. But before either of these experiences, Kislev includes the opportunity to engage in the secular American holiday of Thanksgiving.

There is absolutely nothing Jewish about the lore of Thanksgiving, but a national holiday dedicated to gratitude provides a unique opportunity to link our American and our Jewish identities. Let me explain.

As Jews, we take the name of our people from Judah, the son of Jacob and Leah. In Hebrew the name is Yehudah, which means "I will praise." The collective noun in Hebrew is Yehudim, which can also mean "the thankful ones." The Hebrew root for Yehudah/Yehudim is shared by ho'da'ah, "to give thanks," and todah, the Hebrew word for "thank you." As Jews, we are a people intrinsically identified by gratitude. What a beautiful opportunity we have to express our Jewish identity of gratitude during the Thanksgiving holiday!

As we experience Cheshvan and begin Kislev, I wish each of you a season of joyful being and abundant gratitude.

Rabbi Meir

ONGOING SUPPORT FOR THOUGHTFUL THURSDAYS: FROM APPLES TO TURKEYS

The Jewish community's continued support for Thoughtful Thursdays helped us provide fresh fruit in October for the Brightpoint Head Start children who attend class at the Temple. This month, we're giving a 12-to-14-pound turkey to each of our families, along with a roasting pan and cooking instructions.

Through generous donations to Thoughtful Thursdays' 10th annual Apple Project during the High Holy Days, we were able to provide a bag of Honeycrisp apples in October to each family.

A special thank you to Janet Katz for picking up, delivering, and helping bag the apples.

Our Turkey Project grew out of our efforts over a few years to give away several turkeys through a drawing among the families. In 2018, a Temple member who wished to remain anonymous paid for 35 turkeys, hoping to inspire others to support the effort. We raised enough money to provide a turkey for each of our families and their teachers and have continued the effort since then.

Again this year, we are seeking donations of $18 each through Wednesday, November 25 to help us purchase enough turkeys for all the families and teachers. Please make your check payable to "CAV-The Temple," indicate that your donation is for turkeys, and send it to the Temple at 5200 Old Mill Road, Fort Wayne, IN 46807. Or donate online to Thoughtful Thursdays and indicate "turkeys."

We also are very grateful to Ellen & Mick Tom for donating toothpaste and toothbrushes for adults and children for dental hygiene bags for the families.

We welcome volunteers to shop for grocery items for the monthly Thoughtful Thursdays bags. Please contact Sally Trotter at office@templecav.org if you can help.

Remember, hunger doesn't stop just because there is a pandemic!

NEW BOARD BOOKS TO TEEN FICTION IN THE TEMPLE LIBRARY

Though it was delayed a bit by COVID, we received a shipment of books from Kar-Ben Publishing a few weeks ago for the Rabbi Richard B. Safran Library. As many of you know, we are part of their "ASAP" program which gives us earliest access to their new titles.

This box had 12 books, as usual ranging from board books to teen fiction, but most being picture books for the lower grades.

The two new board books were Happy Birthday, Trees! by Karen Rostoker-Gruber, for Tu B'Shevat, and a cute book by Ellen Bari, Does Your Dog Speak Hebrew?: A Book of Animal Sounds.

On the other end of the spectrum, Beni's War, by Tammar Stein, is a sequel to The Six-Day Hero, a Sydney Taylor Honor Book from 2017. It's set in Israel during the Yom Kippur War, and is directed at teen readers. Two chapter-books for middle grade readers were also in the shipment. Noah Green Saves the World, by Laura Toffler-Corrie, is a bit of a mystery set at summer camp. Mat Tonti's The Book of Secrets is a graphic novel of mystical Jewish stories woven into an adventure tale.

Holiday picture books in the box include an updated version of Shoshana Lepon's Hillel Builds a House, The Abba Tree by Devora

Busheri, and There Was a Young Rabbi: A Hanukkah Tale by Suzanne Wolfe. As the title suggests, the latter is a fun, limerick-style text. We also received a 20th Anniversary Edition of It's Challah Time by Latifa Berry Kropf, a classic picture book for preschoolers. It's hard to believe that book has been out for 20 years!

To add to our Anne Frank collection, Barbara Powell has written Behind the Bookcase: Miep Gies, Anne Frank, and the Hiding Place. This picture book focuses on Miep Gies and her relationship with Anne, with powerful illustrations.

Finally, two of the most esteemed and well-known Jewish children's writers had new titles in the shipment. From Sylvia Rouss we have Sammy Spider's First Book of Prayers, covering the "what" and the "why" of our most common prayers. And from our favorite Eric Kimmel comes Nicanor's Gate, a beautiful picture book about rebuilding the ruined Temple in Jerusalem.

Even though the building is still closed, we hope you will take advantage of the resources our library has to offer. You can reserve titles through our online catalog at and then pick them up at the Temple office. Contact Betsy at library@templecav.

YOUTH NEWS

ASKING GOOD QUESTIONS

- How would you describe G-d?
- What is prayer?
- How do we know whether G-d listens to prayer?
- What is something you do daily because of being Jewish?
- What is the best part of being Jewish?

These are several questions that some of our Religious School students wrestled with in recent weeks. Asking questions is a very Jewish concept. Whereas these questions were asked of the students, our tradition emphasizes the fact that children must ask questions.

There is a story of a Nobel Prize winner in physics, Isadore Rabi, who was asked why he became a scientist. He replied, "My mother made me a scientist without ever knowing it. Every other child would come back from school and be asked, 'What did you learn today?' But my mother used to ask: 'Izzy, did you ask a good question today?' That made the difference. Asking good questions made me a scientist."

Although we ask our children questions and encourage them to come up with insightful answers, it is equally important that our youth explore their world through their own thought-provoking questions. Asking questions and challenging oneself to think deeply is one of the central values of being Jewish.

LOOKING AHEAD TO A GREAT SUMMER AT GUCI

After the heartbreak of having to cancel camp last summer, registration is underway for an exciting summer 2021 of fun and Jewish friendships at Goldman Union Camp Institute, our regional Union for Reform Judaism camp in Zionsville.

Register by October 31 to save $100 (4-week sessions) and $75 (two-week sessions).

Enroll your child entering third grade in the fall through high school. GUCI provides a wonderful atmosphere where it's cool to be Jewish!

With the current pandemic, GUCI offers this important note: "The road from here to summer 2021 is neither straight nor smooth. As the landscape surrounding COVID-19 progresses and changes, we will continue to evaluate, consult with experts in various fields, learn from camps that operated successfully (and unsuccessfully) last summer, and, of course, review any laws, regulations and agency guidance on the subject that may affect our ability to safely offer in-person summer programming.

"We know there will be many questions as we move towards summer. We will be as transparent as possible and provide you with updated information as soon as it is available. As you might expect, the health and safety of our community is of paramount importance."

Please contact the Temple office for campership information or Campership Chair Brian Rosman. Considering Jewish overnight camp for the first time? Your child may be eligible for a need-blind grant of up to $1,000 this summer through the Foundation for Jewish Camp.

SIMCHAT TORAH AND CONSECRATION

Congregants from more than 35 households gathered together virtually on October 11 to celebrate Simchat Torah and Consecration with two of our students as they begin their Jewish education at the Temple.

The students received gifts and blessings from their parents, Rabbi Meir, and the congregation. Following this simcha, Rabbi Meir led a brief and festive tefilah, that continued with the reading of the last verses of Deuteronomy by Pam Friedman and the first verses of Genesis by Andrew Bosell. The celebration closed with Rabbi Meir guiding a tour of the Torah, showing how recognizable verses appear in the scroll.

Torah is a closed book until it is read with an open heart.
House of Israel, great and small, open your heart to the words of Torah.

Torah sanctifies life; it teaches us how to be human and holy.

House of Israel, near and far, cherish the eternal sign of God's love.

SUKKOT CELEBRATION - What three famous people, living or dead, would you invite into your sukkah? Rabbi Meir posed that question during our Sukkot service on October 2. His choices were NPR reporter Nina Totenberg, Golda Meir, and Julia Child. During the virtual Oneg Shabbat, others indicated they'd like to host Oprah Winfrey, the Rat Pack, Carl Reiner, Mel Brooks, Jack Benny, Leonardo Da Vinci, and Mahatma Gandhi.

The virtual Sukkot celebration included Rabbi Meir sharing holiday traditions – shaking the lulav and inhaling the lovely scent of the etrog from inside our congregational sukkah – thanks to a pre-recorded segment. Our Temple family also offered "mazel tov" to Micki & Sherwin Kepes in celebration of their 60th wedding anniversary.

MARTIN GOLDSMITH'S "WINTER JOURNEY" TO AIR NOVEMBER 8

The Jewish Federation of Fort Wayne and PBS39 are proud to bring you the movie "Winter Journey" on Sunday, November 8 at 2 p.m. on PBS39.

"Winter Journey" is based on American radio host Martin Goldsmith's book about his Jewish parents, who fled Nazi Germany. Both were talented musicians, but after the Nuremberg Laws were enacted in 1935, they were only able to perform as members of the Jewish Cultural Federation, a bizarre propaganda organization fully controlled by the Reich Chamber of Culture.

The film brings to life the reality of their beautiful and painful love story, using remarkable and ingenuously edited archive material. It also includes reenactments of the conversations Goldsmith had with his father as preparation for the book. Martin Goldsmith plays himself, as the unseen interviewer, while a vulnerable Bruno Ganz is playing his father Georg Goldsmith. It was Bruno Ganz' last part before he died in 2019.

Goldsmith, author of Inextinguishable Symphony: A True Story of Music and Love in Nazi Germany, spoke during Fort Wayne's Yom Hashoah program in April 2018, sponsored by the Jewish Federation.

Thank you to the Dr. Harry W. Salon Foundation for its support.

Keeping our Achduth Vesholom family connected through online worship, educational, and social offerings will continue, along with our ongoing outreach to members without internet access.

The board closed the building on March 13 in response to the growing health crisis, with services, classes, meetings and other activities shifting online and the staff working remotely. Worship and programming moved to Zoom, including holding our first virtual Bar Mitzvah and Annual Meeting..

In July, Rabbi Meir and the staff resumed essential work in the building, taking precautions for social distancing and wearing face masks. The board also decided that no in-person worship would be held during the High Holy Days and planning began for online Reform and traditional services. Rifkin Campus partners were able to access their offices within health and safety guidelines.

In September, Brightpoint Head Start, which offers a free preschool program for children ages 3 to 5 from low-income families, resumed inperson classes at the Temple. About half the number of students attend as compared to last year's 72 children, with staggered attendance schedules and new COVID-related safety measures.

Temple Executive Director Samara Sheray has been working with Brightpoint to ensure safety precautions are in place. These include enhanced cleaning throughout the building and detailed plans for kitchen, classroom, and facility use by Head Start.

Our only in-person event in the past eight months was outdoors on the second day of Rosh Hashanah with masks and distancing. Some 90 congregants gathered on September 20 in the Temple parking lot for a shofar and Tashlich service. A later survey of members indicated interest in other outdoor gatherings as weather and health conditions permit. If you have any questions or concerns, please reach out to us. Our Temple family is a kehillah kedoshah, a holy community, and we are here for you.

DONATE & JOIN OUR CORNED BEEF TEAM FOR 2021

Due to the pandemic, we've canceled this year's 19th annual Corned Beef on Rye - Sure to Satisfy sale, scheduled for November. Our new focus, though, will be on bringing back the Temple's largest fundraiser better than ever in fall 2021 and involving even more congregants in this important tradition.

Looking ahead, we anticipate pent-up demand for the return of our delicious meals that include a mouthwatering corned beef on rye, creamy coleslaw, crunchy dill pickle, and fudgy brownie.

Your support is needed:

- Please consider making a donation to our general operations for an amount you would have spent to sponsor and buy meals (indicate "corned beef" in the "in honor of" line). This will help us make up the proceeds lost from the cancelation of this year's sale.
- Get involved on the Corned Beef Committee to help raise money and build camaraderie within the congregation. Please contact the Temple office at (260) 744-4245 or office@templecav.org to say you'd like to assist with planning the event.
- Offer your suggestions and help in planning an alternative fundraiser for this current fiscal year (keeping safety protocols in mind). Contact us to share your ideas.

PRESIDENT'S CORNER ELLEN TOM

If things were back to normal, we would be sharing stories about vacations taken, family and friendship gatherings, or the joy of seeing an in-person ballet, Philharmonic or Embassy Theatre performance. The pandemic continues to create uncertainty, with social unrest and politics creating further uneasiness. Yet it has been a comfort and blessing to have been working with our Temple community during these times. While our building continues to be closed, there is still "normal" going on behind the scenes.

The Facilities Committee continues to review the condition and maintenance of our campus building and grounds. In the upcoming weeks, the committee members will also be exploring ways in which we can create a shared space for all the yahrzeit plaques from Achduth Vesholom and B'nai Jacob. The goal is to have this project completed by the time we can safely reopen.

The Communications Committee is working on updating our website platform and content. The Program Committee and the Ritual Committee have been looking at the calendar to find creative ways to host social events and worship virtually. The Board Development Committee is working on a leadership development plan to help us maintain a strong future.

Our Religious School holds virtual sessions on Sunday, and we recently celebrated Consecration with two of our newest students and also honored five students with the presentation of prayer books signifying the beginning of their b'nei mitzvah studies.

The Rabbi Richard B. Safran Library has online access to borrow books and materials, with a procedure established to safely pick up items at the Temple. Our Thoughtful Thursdays team continues to shop, prepare, and distribute food items for our Brightpoint Head Start families.

Rabbi Meir and myself will soon be participating in the Shallat Rabbinic Transition Program hosted by the Union for Reform Judaism "for congregations that have welcomed a new Rabbi. Through shared learning participants plan and implement the successful integration of their new Rabbi into the congregational community and acquire the tools and skills to lead their congregation through future congregational change." Rabbi Meir and I look forward to sharing our experience and take-aways with all of you.

While I still do not know when and how we will reopen, I do know (in addition to all those mentioned above) that Rabbi Meir, Executive Director Samara Sheray, staff and lay leaders have been working tirelessly to bring the most meaningful experience that is physically, economically and spiritually possible.

We have made and will make difficult choices. The COVID Task Force is now meeting regularly and will soon have criteria and guidelines to propose to the Board by the end of the year. The health and safety of our community is of paramount importance.

May we all find the strength to face these challenging times and be blessed with the wisdom to make the right decisions.
