We're excited to welcome our newest congregants following the landmark decision by the memberships of Achduth Vesholom and B'nai Jacob to come together as one congregation.

With the addition of a Temple Book Club new weekly Shabbat morning service this month, the Temple continues its transition to offering two worship traditions. The members of B'nai Jacob, a Conservative egalitarian congregation, became new members of Achduth Vesholom on July 1.

> This new chapter offers a wonderful opportunity to expand friendships and try new Jewish experiences, as we welcome our new rabi. While the Temple remains a Reform congregation in philosophy and practice, we'll now offer a lay-led traditional service on Shabbat mornings, beginning August 10 at 9:15 a.m.

In addition, some traditional holiday services with guest clergy or lay leaders will be offered during the year. All services are open to the congregation and community.

RABBI PAULA JAYNE WINNIG A HOME FOR GOD IN OUR LIVES

Dear Friends:

In the Book of Exodus, Chapter 25, verse 8, we read:

ועשו לי מִקדָשׁ ושַׁכַנִתִּי בַּתוֹכָנ

V'asoo lee mikdash v'shachanti b'tocham

Make me a sanctuary so that I may dwell among them.

The text describes thousands of details about the type of "mishkan" (sanctuary) that is to be built by the Israelites. This sanctuary is unique in that it is to be a portable building for the Israelites to take with them so that God will be present wherever the Israelites are. In ancient times, a portable God, one who travelled with you, was innovative. For at that time, people built shrines in places and travelled to them to worship. In later time periods, though the Temple stood in Jerusalem, altars, shrines, synagogues and Jewish homes maintained this idea that God could dwell among us.

As I begin my tenure as interim rabbi of Congregation Achduth Vesholom, I am reminded of this verse and this idea that God is found wherever we build a home for God in our lives. Since 1848, the Congregation Achduth Vesholom community has created a welcoming home for Jews in Fort Wayne to continue building this relationship between God and the Jewish people. The covenant which began with our ancestors is alive, vibrant and meaningful to us today. It is ever changing and ever evolving, but built solidly in the framework that has lasted over the millennia. As we work together this year and as we welcome the B'nai Jacob community as part of the Temple family, we will continue this work of building a sanctuary that allows for communal connection, communal education and communal spiritual growth.

I am grateful to the search committee, led so beautifully by Mike Rush and Fran Adler, and President Ellen Tom for all they have done to prepare for my arrival. I look forward to meeting all of you and having time to share our Jewish journeys together. Together may we find a dwelling place for God in our hearts, our homes and in this city beside three rivers.

Best Wishes,

Rabbi Paula Jayne Winnig

NEW SATURDAY MORNING SERVICE BEGINS IN AUGUST

As part of our transition to two traditions, we're expanding our worship options to offer a new weekly Shabbat morning service, beginning Saturday, August 10 at 9:15 a.m. at the Temple. We welcome all who have been attending this lay-led service at Congregation B'nai Jacob to continue the tradition with us! If you haven't been before, we invite you to join us as we build k'hillah (community)!

Our Friday evening services continue this month at 6:15 p.m., with Rabbi Paula Jayne Winnig on the bimah for the first time at Achduth Vesholom on Friday, August 9.

Sharing the joy of Shabbat is a wonderful way to start the weekend, enjoy new friendships, learn Jewishly, and grow spiritually. Friday evening worship will continue with Reform services and Saturday morning services will be more traditional.

Our regular Shabbat evening service time will move to 7:30 p.m. beginning Friday, September 6. Please join us for worship, followed by Kiddush. Check the calendar at www.templecav.org for special times and programs.

JEWISH DAY OF MOURNING ON AUGUST 11

Tisha B'Av (the 9th day of the Hebrew month of Av) is the final day of a 3-week mourning period on the Jewish calendar. Many national calamities have taken place for the Jewish people on the 9th of Av. These include the destruction of the First and Second Temples in Jerusalem, the expulsion of Jews from Spain in 1492, and the liquidation of the Warsaw ghetto in 1942.

Generally, Jews do not get married during these three weeks and other customs surrounding the laws of mourning are observed, ending with a complete fast on Tisha B'Av. Although this day of mourning is an observance of our collective memory, Tisha B'Av too reminds us all to be more aware for the suffering of humankind and the social responsibilities that we have in making a more just and loving society.

B'NAI JACOB RESOURCES ADDED TO TEMPLE LIBRARY

We are thrilled to welcome B'nai Jacob members to our Rabbi
Richard B. Safran Library and are working hard to incorporate significant materials from the synagogue's collection into our catalog.

Already more than 100 children's books have been added, with many more to come. Among the titles already added is My First Yiddish Word Book by Joni Sussman, which matches a similar Hebrew book by Judyth Groner. We now have David Adler's Kids' Catalog of Hanukkah and DK Readers biographies of Anne Frank and Albert Einstein to supplement our collection.

Particularly intriguing for our middle grade readers may be Tova Guttmann's Double Dare of the Gooblyglop and Kung-Fooey to the Rescue by Yaacov Peterseil.

Jewish Holiday Treats by Joan Zoloth looks like a beautiful family cookbook.

The highlight of B'nai Jacob's adult library is a large collection of ArtScroll publications, particularly for Bible study. In addition to the significant reference works, there are a variety of other titles, including humor, history, and holiday books that will supplement what we already have. There are several Yiddish titles coming, including Yiddish With Dick and Jane, which certainly fits the humor category as well.

It will be a few weeks or more before this large collection can be fully incorporated into the Rabbi Richard B. Safran library. Watch our online catalog as the titles get added. While shelved along with everything else, the B'nai Jacob materials will be tagged as the "B'nai Jacob Collection" for future reference.

As we welcome our new members, please remember that our library is a wonderful resource. With the B'nai Jacob materials, we will most likely have more than 6,500 titles to offer – both fiction and non-fiction for all ages. Not only to we house books, we have a significant collection of DVDs and audio CDs as well as some games and puzzles.

All members are welcome to use this resource and can use the self-checkout at the library desk whenever the building is open. Betsy Gephart, our librarian, usually staffs the library on Thursday afternoons and on Sunday mornings during Religious School, but is happy to answer any questions at library@templecav.org. Please stop by and check us out!

TEMPLE BOOK CLUB TO FOCUS ON MUSIC

Following the musical theme of our congregational programming this year, the Temple Book Club will be reading three books related to music. Our sessions take place on Tuesday evenings at 7 p.m. in the Madge Rothschild Resource Center. We begin with our own discussion of the book, and then chat electronically with each of the authors.

We will start with Alyson Richman's The Garden of Letters on Tuesday, September 24. A selection of the Jewish Book Council's Book Club, this novel follows the story of Elodie, a Jewish cellist arriving in Italy in 1943. The author is particularly keen to share her experience of researching this novel with us.

During our second session on January 14, we switch gears to Chicago for Windy City Blues by Renee Rosen. Set in the 1950s and 60s, the novel showcases the relationship between Jewish record company owners and African American blues artists. Leeba Groski, an Orthodox Jewish songwriter, is a woman caught in the middle of these two communities.

Finally, on March 3, we'll read Tasa's Song: A Novel by Linda Kass. Inspired by true events, the novel follows Tasa, a young Polish violinist, caught in World War II between the Nazis and the Soviet Union. From Publishers Weekly, it is "a memorable tale of unflinching courage in the face of war—and the power of love and beauty to flourish amid its horrors."

Please plan to join us for all three sessions this year. We look forward to discussing these titles with you. Copies are available in the Rabbi Richard B. Safran Library.

'MOON PATH' NEWEST NOVEL FROM STEVEN GREENBERG

Moon Path, the third novel by former Temple member Steven Greenberg, asks how far fraternal love can stretch. Samuel and Aron Katz's fragile childhood connection is severed when Aron leaves pre-WW II Poland for Palestine, and yet again when Samuel is sent to an arctic Soviet Gulag. Now, Aron must decide how far he will go to save his younger brother.

Steven, son of Temple members Ronnie & Norm Greenberg, emigrated to Israel in late 1990 following his graduation from Indiana University, months before the first Gulf War. A lifetime student of the Middle East, Steven's years in Israel - including 12 years in the Israel Defense Forces reserves as a combat medic - together with his U.S. background add to his storytelling.

The book is available through Amazon in paperback or Kindle format. A copy is available in the Rabbi Richard B. Safran Library. Thank you to Ronnie & Norm for donating!

SECURITY WORKSHOP Offered

Congregants are invited to a security workshop on Sunday, September 15 at noon at the Temple to learn safety tips in case of an emergency in the building.

In this training workshop, Deputy Chief James E. Feasel Jr. of the Fort Wayne Police Department and owner of Integrated Threat Analysis Consulting LLC, will provide participants with strategies that can be used to prepare and respond to an unpredicted event. Participants will be presented with several steps to take to assist law enforcement response to help limit the number of potential injuries.

Please RSVP to the Temple office at (260) 744-4245. Contact Executive Director Samara Sheray with questions.

"We often scour the remnant bins at our local craft stores for fabrics to use," says her mom, Wendi. "As she becomes more and more proficient, we are running out of fabric. If you have cotton fabric you'd like to get rid of, Bella will gladly take your scraps to assemble pillowcases."

The fabric needs to be at least 41"x 26" and the border needs to be at least 11"x 41".

LEARNING ABOUT THE TANAKH

Middle school students in Religious School spent time last year learning with Dave Flapan about the Tanakh. The Torah, Nevi'im (Prophets) and Ketuvim (Writings) together are known as the Tanakh.

"We read dozens of passages from the Torah," Dave explained. "We also read commentaries and analyzed these classic stories. For our final project, we chose two Torah portions. We summarized them, researched commentary on them, and analyzed all of this. We then studied HTML, and coded a website for our output format!"

Over the summer, Dave made the project available on line. Please take a look at the work of students Joseph Katinsky and Naomi Gephart.

REGISTER FOR RELIGIOUS SCHOOL AND A GREAT YEAR OF JEWISH LEARNING

HISTORIC CHANGES APPROVED AT ANNUAL MEETING

The Temple's membership approved two historic changes on June 12 at the 171st Annual Meeting, including the coming together of Achduth Vesholom and B'nai Jacob as one congregation this summer and a bylaws change that allows non-Jewish members to serve on the board.

President Ellen Tom also announced that the congregation has hired Rabbi Paula Jayne Winnig to begin on August 1 as our Interim Rabbi for the coming year. The Rabbinic Search Committee will continue looking for a settled rabbi.

During a well-attended meeting with substantive discussions, Ellen highlighted the efforts of the Rabbinic Search Committee and the B'yachad (Together) committee and shared thoughts prior to the important votes.

Early in the meeting, she stated that the board strongly recommends approval of the bylaws change in an effort to be more welcoming and inclusive. She also said that approving the proposed partnership with B'nai Jacob would allow us to provide a better quality of services through the spectrum of worship, education, and programming to our congregants and the community.

In reviewing the past year's events, Ellen highlighted our 16th Annual Home Shabbat, Temple Book Club, ROMEOs events, the Interfaith Thanksgiving and L'dor Vador services, and Temple Night at the TinCaps. Thoughtful Thursdays continued serving the community with a large number of volunteers. She also noted that we combined the adult education and other committees into the programming committee to better plan and coordinate events.

As a community and a congregation, she said, we united and held a Shabbat Prayer Vigil to honor the lives that had been tragically taken at the Tree of Life Synagogue in Pittsburgh. An updated Purim Carnival brought together youth and adults thanks to the youth group and dedicated parents. Our Religious School continued to thrive.

Our 17th annual Corned beef Fundraiser generated $20,000, led by Chuck Replane and Steve Zacher. We're planning now for our 18th year on November 7, chaired by Larry Adelman and Samara Sheray.

Ellen said the board last year was in a position to be more strategic in nature, leaving the day-to-day operations in the capable hands of our Temple Executive Director Samara Sheray and staff.

Much of the focus for the coming year, she said, will be continuing the search for a settled Rabbi, embracing "One Community – Two Traditions" through respectful and mutual collaboration, exploration and flexibility, and establishing a comprehensive security plan to ensure appropriate and adequate safety of members and visitors.

Finances

VP Finance Steve Zacher said projected revenue is on target as we complete the 2018-2019 fiscal year, but expenses are about $36,000 under budget due to lower employee costs, insurance fees, and outside expenses. He said he anticipates ending the year with a surplus rather than the anticipated deficit.

For the coming year, Steve said, total Temple income is budgeted at $397,574, with a significant portion from dividend and interest income from our assets, fundraising, rental income and dues. While we appreciate members who are generous in their dues, he said, our overall dues levels aren't strong, averaging to about $1,000 per membership unit.

The congregation approved the 2019-2020 Temple budget of $424,992, with a projected deficit of $27,418. That does not include any impact from plans with B'nai Jacob. Steve said if the deficit occurs, then it would be manageable with funds from the Temple Operations Special Reserve Fund.

Bylaws Change Allows Non-Jewish Board Members

Bylaws Subcommittee Chair John Stein was unable to attend the meeting. Beth Zweig and Denny Reynolds, both members of the subcommittee, presented the proposed changes for congregational vote that would permit non-Jewish members to serve on the board of directors, though not as President or Ritual Committee chair.

Our current bylaws state that you must be Jewish to be a member of the congregation. They also say "any person not of the Jewish faith who is a spouse or domestic partner of a member and who wishes to associate with and follow the principles of this congregation may be admitted to membership..."

While non-Jewish members can serve on committees and in most other roles at the Temple, board service was prohibited.

A similar change was discussed a decade ago during a review of the bylaws, Beth said, but didn't advance. The current leadership thought the change made sense now since we have many interfaith marriages, we attempt to be welcoming and inclusive to our non-Jewish members, and we could draw on an expanded pool of leaders. However, Beth said, the board also felt it important for the President and Ritual Committee Chair to be Jewish since we're a Jewish organization.

At the same time, she said, the board considered whether the same restriction should apply to the Religious School Committee chair and also what the impact of the bylaws change would be on the overall make-up of the board. However, she said, the board recognized that the Board Development Committee is tasked with vetting candidates and looking at the overall larger picture of congregational needs. Other congregations nationally have adopted similar policies to include non-Jewish members of the board.

A lengthy discussion followed on the pros and cons of the issue, including those who felt strongly that a Jewish organization should have an exclusively Jewish board and those who stated that adopting the proposal would be more welcoming to non-Jewish spouses. The proposed change was narrowly approved by the membership.

Conversations began in July 2018 between Ellen Tom and Pam Friedman, President of Congregation B'nai Jacob, that turned into a shared vision of the future of both congregations. While the topic had been broached many times over the years, Ellen said, the timing seemed right.

Ellen invited B'yachad Committee members Larry Adelman and Beth Zweig to join her in discussing the proposed framework of the partnership to the membership, which was mailed to the congregation in the spring. Ronnie Greenberg, who was not present, also served on the Temple's team for the discussions with Pam, Ron Friedman, Josh Tourkow and Irene Walters from Congregation B'nai Jacob.

B'nai Jacob members approved the partnership between the congregations at their annual meeting in May. Ellen said that B'nai Jacob has sold its building and needs to relocate by the end of September.

Funds will remain separate until the transition is complete and will be used for moving expenses, renovations to the new Goldstine-B'nai Jacob Chapel, and costs related to clergy for traditional holiday services, and other related needs.

Following discussion, Achduth Vesholom's membership approved the partnership framework. The board will now move forward with final steps as B'nai Jacob members become our members, effective July 1. Ellen asked the congregation to be welcoming and sensitive during the transition time.

New Board Elected for 2019-2020

Board Development Chair Bobbie Golani presented the slate of candidates. The members elected officers and trustees for the new fiscal year, beginning July 1, as presented:

Officers: President Ellen Tom, who completed a two-year term, was elected to an additional one-year term ending in June 2020. Elected to one-year terms: VP Programs Kathy Sider, VP Finance Scott Goldberg, and Secretary Bobbie Golani.

Trustees: Elected to a two-year term ending in June 2021 were Larry Adelman, Jessica Ash, Denny Reynolds, and Wendi Wallet. Elected to a one-year term ending in June 2020 were Steve Zacher and Beth Zweig.

The Temple Presidents Club gathered before the Annual Meeting

Ellen Tom leads the Annual Meeting

Trustee Not Up For Re-Election: Talia Bugel is serving a two-year term ending in June 2020.

New Trustee Position: Pamela Friedman, president of Congregation B'nai Jacob, will serve on the Temple board until the transition between the congregations is complete. In turn, the president of Achduth Vesholom or a designee will serve on B'nai Jacob's transitional board during the same time period.

Outgoing Board Members

We thanked Vice President Programs Betsy Gephart and Board members Jamie Berger, Elissa Cohen, and John Stein for their service to the congregation as they complete their board terms. In appreciation, a bookplate was added to our High Holy Days prayer books honoring each.

L'dor Vador Legacy Society Recognized

Beth Zweig, who co-chairs the Planned Giving Committee with Steve Zacher, recognized the late

Leonard Goldstein, her previous co-chair, as the biggest champion of the L'dor Vador Legacy Society. She said Len, who died in April 2018, practiced what he preached. She acknowledged Len's generous gift of $27,000 to the Temple through a life insurance policy and expressed our gratitude to him and his wife, Rikki, who also is a member of our L'dor Vador Legacy Society.

She thanked the 43 people who are members of the legacy society, including 32 charter members. Since we started the society in 2012, she said, the Temple has received $122,000 in planned gifts. Anyone can join at any time by signing a letter of intent for a planned gift to the congregation.

Brosler Award Presented

Bruce Colegrove received the William Brosler Award for Outstanding Volunteerism, which recognizes members of the congregation whose involvement in and commitment to the Temple goes above and beyond that of other volunteers. (See page 9)

B'YACHAD DECISION CHANGES CONGREGATIONAL LANDSCAPE

The transition this summer bringing together members of Congregation Achduth Vesholom and Congregation B'nai Jacob as one congregation with two traditions is the biggest change to the Jewish landscape in Fort Wayne in more than 80 years.

The last major shift came in 1937 when Congregation B'nai Israel closed its doors, leaving Fort Wayne with two houses of worship. Since that time, Achduth Vesholom and B'nai Jacob leaders periodically have discussed merging or sharing space, most recently in 2012 when the Rifkin Campus was being developed on Old Mill Road. A few times, the two congregations offered a joint Religious School for Jewish children.

With rabbinic transitions, shifting demographics, and changing membership patterns, both congregations decided the timing finally was right in August 2018 to begin conversations anew. An eight-member B'yachad (Together) Committee was formed to develop a road map to strengthen the local Jewish community by consolidating into one congregation called Achduth Vesholom.

A plan with Reform services primarily on Friday night and traditional worship on Saturday morning was approved by members of both congregations. The expanded offerings start this month, beginning the newest chapter for Fort Wayne's Jewish community.

Fort Wayne Jewish History

Achduth Vesholom was organized by 23 members as a "Society for Visiting the Sick and Burying the Dead." It was Jewish tradition in the New World for burial grounds to be established before building houses of worship. On Oct. 13, 1848, the society bought for $200 the old burial ground adjoining what is now McCulloch Park. On Oct. 26, 1848, it officially organized the first Jewish congregation in the state of Indiana.

The founders held religious services in the home of Frederic Nirdlinger until 1859 when they had their first formal house of worship. Men and women worshiped in separate parlors in keeping with Orthodox German traditions. In May 1874, Achduth Vesholom became a charter member of the Reform Movement.

The growing congregation in 1884 bought two acres of land at Lindenwood Cemetery, having outgrown its original burial ground. From 1884 to 1900, graves from the old cemetery were relocated to the new one.

In 1894, Fort Wayne had about 40 Orthodox Jewish families of East European origin who worshipped together. On October 21, 1894, they formally organized as The Children of Israel – or B'nai Israel. During the High Holy Days, the congregation rented out the Moose Hall and hired a chazan (who made his living during the year as a peddler) from Ligonier or Goshen, Indiana. Any money that was collected for the aliyot to the Torah went to pay for expenses of the congregation and whatever was left was donated to HIAS (Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society), the Zionist movement, or other forms of tzedakah.

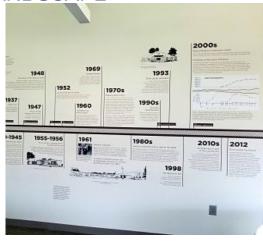

In 1898, the congregation purchased a small building, a former Lutheran Church, on the corner of Brackenridge and Clinton streets. The men of the congregation held a daily minyan, and all Shabbat and holiday services were conducted there as well. About a year later, the building was sold. The congregation never purchased another one, instead holding services on the 3rd floor of Sam Field's store and renting the Moose Hall for holidays.

In the early 1900s, there was little interaction between the East European and West European Jews. By 1910, the Orthodox community counted about 60 families.

Around that time, a major problem developed when Achduth Vesholom informed the the Orthodox community that cemetery lots were restricted and limited for usage by their own membership. Orthodox Jews previously had been buried in the Temple's section of Lindenwood Cemetery.

The Orthodox element then split. One group said that they must provide for their dead and proceeded to buy about 12 acres that for many years was known as the Orthodox Jewish Cemetery. It was open to all Jews, no matter what type of Judaism they practiced. The Orthodox Jewish Cemetery (now the Fort Wayne Jewish Cemetery) was dedicated in November 1911.

The splinter group disagreed with this and said they must provide for the living, and proceeded to plan for a new congregation. On September 29, 1912, Congregation B'nai

The Madge Rothschild Resource Center features a timeline of 200 years of Jewish history in Northeast Indiana

Jacob was organized with 16 charter families. The name B'nai Jacob came from the patriarch Jacob of the Torah to indicate their Orthodox character and to distinguish their new congregation from the B'nai Israel out of which they grew.

The formation of the Jewish Federation of Fort Wayne in 1921 brought together members of the three congregations to work for the betterment of the larger Jewish world.

B'nai Israel continued without a building or rabbi. In 1937, the last holiday service for B'nai Israel was held on the second floor of the Schwartz' store building. A chazan from Chicago was brought in and 45 people attended the service. After the holidays, the members reluctantly agreed to disband the congregation. Most congregants joined B'nai Jacob, but some joined Achduth Vesholom. A few others formed a small minyan and met at the home of Morris Magazine until 1941.

Achduth Vesholom continued as a Reform congregation. B'nai Jacob became a Conservative egalitarian congregation in December 1994. Now in 2019, the two come together to continue building and strengthening the Jewish community.

BRUCE COLEGROVE RECEIVES BROSLER VOLUNTEER AWARD

With unbridled enthusiasm for Judaism, Bruce Colegrove has taught Hebrew and tutored b'nei mitzvah students for the past 20 years at the Temple. When he serves as a lay leader at services, his warmth is contagious, his thoughts and knowledge are deep, and he always goes the extra mile to be welcoming.

For those reasons and many more, Bruce was honored for his dedication to the Temple with the William Brosler Award for Outstanding Volunteerism on June 12 at our 171st Annual Meeting. The award recognizes members whose involvement in and commitment to the Temple goes above and beyond that of other volunteers.

The award is intended to honor a lifetime of service to the congregation – even though we want our volunteers to keep on volunteering. His name will be added to the plaque near the entrance to the Madge Rothschild Resource Center.

Bruce is a passionate reader of the Torah from the bimah. In fact, one year on Yom Kippur, Bruce was so enthusiastic reading Torah to the congregation that a visitor exclaimed from his seat: "This guy is amazing." Bruce says he's inspired by Torah because "it's the world's wisest poetry." He translates the Hebrew as he reads it — and says the meaning is crucial.

Most often, though, Bruce prefers to serve our congregation behind the scenes and doesn't expect -- or particularly like -- much fanfare. Yet his many contributions to Temple life don't go without notice. After learning he received the Brosler Award, Bruce said that he is humbled.

"I regard the Brosler Award as the greatest honor I have received in my entire life," he said. "I also consider it the greatest privilege of my life to be a member of this congregation."

A member of the Rabbinic Search Committee and Ritual Committee, Bruce also previously served on the Temple board.

A native of Elmira, NY, Bruce has two children – a daughter, Rachel, 25, and son, Jack, 20. Bruce teaches Spanish at Canterbury High School. He studied Spanish as a kid and learned German while serving overseas in the U.S. Army, adding Ancient Greek upon his return. His subsequent language studies included Sanskrit, Latin, French, Old Irish, Old Icelandic, Hittite, Lithuanian, and "a little Persian." He said he dabbled in Italian and Dutch, and taught himself Hebrew.

With a bachelor's degree in Classics from Elmira College, Bruce completed most of the work toward a PhD at Cornell University in Classics with a concentration in Historical Linguistics and Indo-European Languages.

A lifelong learner, one of Bruce's current interests is developing a website using his extensive research on the Women's Orchestra of Auschwitz, founded in the concentration camp in April 1943. (See Member Spotlight June/July Bulletin.) Bruce will talk about "Strings of Inspiration" on Tuesday, October 29 at 7 p.m. at the Temple.

EXPERIENCE REINFORCES LOVE OF JEWISH TRADITION & INNOVATION

Samara Sheray is the Temple's Executive Director, a teacher in our Religious School, and coordinator of our Shabbat Katan children's service. She is an alumna of Achduth Vesholom's Religious School and Goldman Union Camp Institute.

I was fortunate this summer to join 22 other lay leaders from small congregations at the Had'rachah Seminar for Lay Leadership in Ritual Life presented by the Union for Reform Judaism at URJ Kutz Camp in Warwick, New York.

We gathered June 19-23 in a beautiful outdoor setting to learn a variety of skills to enable us to lead communal worship services and life-cycle events. Additionally, we gained much knowledge to help support our congregational rabbi whenever necessary as an additional resource to our local Jewish community.

Our first two days focused primarily on funerals. Highlighted in this section were mourning customs and rituals within the Reform movement, eulogies, funeral procedures, and much more.

On Friday night, we transitioned into Shabbat and services. We started off with "How music sets the tone for T'filah (prayer)" with Cantor Rosalie Boxt, the URJ's Director of Worship and Music (and a GUCI alum). We continued on Saturday discussing "Theology and God talk" with Rabbi Ben Spratt from Congregation Rodeph Shalom in New York City.

Later that day, we learned about "Birth, Brit Milah and Namings" with Rabbi Spratt. We also covered how to host those ceremonies in a nongender specific way. In the evening, I read the D'var Torah that I had prepared to discuss the weekly portion Sh'lach during our Havadalah service.

It's hard to put into words how much I learned during this wonderful opportunity. I think where I grew the most is within what it means to be a confident shaliach tzibur (prayer leader).

I went into this with the inner monologue of "How can I make my congregation proud?" "How do I make sure I am saying the version of certain prayers that everyone recognizes?" – and even "How can I be as good as Norm & Ronnie (Greenberg) when I don't play guitar?"

I found answers to all of my concerns and more. I was shown many different approaches to leading service and song that had never crossed my mind before. I now have a real understanding of how to best utilize our Mishkan T'filah (prayer book). I also found a new community of support & resources in the staff and other participants who attended Had'rachah. This was something I never expected to take home from this program.

Through prayers, singing, discussions, sharing, and meeting others involved deeply in congregational life, I was reminded why I love being Jewish. After being immersed in Judaism in such a profound way, I also realized again why it is so important to embrace our traditions while continuing to be open to change and newness within those traditions.

I greatly appreciate the Temple and the Dr. Harry W. Salon Foundation for supporting my attendance at Had'rachah. I'm one of several members over the years to participate in the seminar and look forward to continuing to help our congregation and the Fort Wayne Jewish community.

PRESIDENT'S CORNER ELLEN TOM

As we embark on many new beginnings, I want to start by welcoming our interim spiritual leader, Rabbi Paula Jayne Winnig. I hope you will join us on Friday, August 2 at 6:15 p.m. as we host an Oneg Shabbat in her honor following services. We also welcome back some familiar faces to our Board of Trustees, along with new ones. We're pleased that our leadership now includes Pam Friedman, the president of the Congregation B'nai Jacob's Transitional Board.

In the weeks to come, you will begin to notice exciting changes to the Goldstine-B'nai Jacob Chapel and, after the High Holidays, renovations to our Sanctuary. Our Facilities Committee has been busy meeting with general contractors, planning the relocation of B'nai Jacob's furnishings and artifacts, and determining a timeline to minimize any disruption to our worship, Religious School, programming, and Brightpoint's use of our facility during the week. This undertaking would not be possible without the efforts of committee members Pam Friedman, Mark Schneider, Samara Sheray, Sally Trotter, Steve Zacher, and Jay Zemmol.

The newly renovated Goldstine-B'nai Jacob Chapel will have a more modern feel with fresh new colors, flooring, kitchenette, new HVAC, and windows. You also will see the relocation of doorways to accommodate the beautiful Ark from B'nai Jacob that will be placed on the east wall. You will get to experience the sight and warmth of our yahrzeit plaques as they are gently relocated within our Sanctuary.

We hope to begin the Chapel renovations in mid-August with anticipated completion 6-8 weeks out. The Sanctuary renovations will not begin until after the High Holidays in October. We appreciate everyone's flexibility and patience as we navigate this upcoming construction.

With these new beginnings come new experiences. I hope you will embrace these new opportunities through your participation in our Tisha B'Av and new Shabbat morning services. We are finalizing holiday plans and will share details in our weekly communications. A special thanks to Denny Reynolds, John Planer, and the resurrected Hazemir Choir as they diligently work behind the scenes to make our High Holy Days very special.

We have accomplished much in this past year and it has truly been a collaboration of our congregants. May our joy continue to be enhanced as we realize how many were involved in the process and appreciate the unique contributions that we made, large and small. Chazak, chazak, v'nitchazeik! "Be strong, be strong, and we will be encouraged."
